

TRAINED NURSES AND TRAINING SCHOOLS.

BY MARY CAT BOURBON, IN THE "METHODIST."

In our advanced civilization and Christianity we find that nurses are commonly ignorant, untrained and concealed; they often interrupt the physician's treatment by disobeying his orders and substituting their own notions. Hitherto, none would be nurses, except the poor and ignorant; yet the nurse, because always present, has more influence in a family than the doctor. Women need to be trained as nurses under suitable instructors. Their special responsibility consists in carrying out the orders of the doctor, and constantly attending with intelligent observance upon air, food, light, etc., for the patient; and besides all this, marking with great care the various changes in the patient and reporting them accurately to the doctor.

A few schools have started already in this good work. About a year ago one was opened in connection with the Bellevue Hospital under the direction of the State Charity Aid Society. In the track of schools and hospitals abroad, Bellevue Training School with a lady at its head who had been thoroughly trained in Europe and was eminently fitted to undertake the new enterprise.

Let us visit the Nurses' Home, No. 314 E. 20th street, New York. It is a four story brick house. As you enter every thing looks lovely. Though a winter's day, the doors are thrown open through the house; in the parlor a bright fire burns in the grate; on one side is a library of books and papers, on the other side a musical instrument; all looks cheery, pleasant and home-like. A young lady music teacher has kindly offered to come once a week to give singing lessons, that the nurses may learn something of the art which David used to dispel the malady of King Saul. The school numbers twenty nurses. Sister Helen Bowden, B.S., is in-charge of the Training School, a lady as housekeeper and two servants. Many more pupils are applied than they can accommodate. They hope soon to buy the adjoining house and then to receive double the present number.

From the Nurses' Home we go to Bellevue Hospital. Sister Helen comes in bright and cheerful, takes a six week old baby from its young mother, tosses it up and down as she goes through the wards, large, clean and sunny, and asks, "Will any one buy a baby?" The wards look pleasant and comfortable; seeing others sick seems to rouse emulation in the struggle for getting well. Each has some advantage over the misfortune of her neighbor. The hopeful, earnest work of the nurses whose best strength and skill are given to the methods of cure, makes the patient feel the alleviation of pain and the success of remedy is as much looked for by the doctor and nurse as she herself can wish. And for the nurses one year's experience in the hospital is worth a great deal. There every disease except such as are contagious, is treated; such as lung troubles in their manifold manifestations, rheumatism, various forms of heart disease, Bright's disease—so fearfully common—fits of epilepsy and paralysis, amputation, excision of joints, cancer cases, fractures—any amount of them—tumors and obstructions. In this cot is a patient upon whom the doctor operated for hip joint disease—a bad case, which the doctor gave up to die; but the indefatigable nurse kept up courage and work, and owing to good nursing the patient lived.

The work of the training school is arranged systematically. Those who serve as night nurses have the day for sleep. After dinner at 7 in the evening, they take the place of the day nurses, who leave at 8. Each nurse has one afternoon a week off duty, but many of them are so interested in their work, they ask as a special favor to be allowed to remain and not leave their patients, as many a lady of leisure and pleasure will not leave her novel, fan or work or embroidery.

Sunday each nurse has a half day to herself. In the training school there are two classes, head nurses and probationers. The probationers are put for two months to night nursing and ten months to day nursing. At the end of the first year they are promoted to such work as they have proved themselves best fitted to do. The training is four months in medical cases, four months, surgical, two months for night duty and two months what each is best fitted to do.

Each nurse is paid $10 a month and all expenses the first year, and the salary is increased the second year in proportion to the kind of work each proves herself capable of doing. Candidates must be twenty or not over thirty five years of age; must present a certificate from a clergyman and physician of a good character, and sound health. The nurses, after their six and nine months' training, are doing remarkably well, owing to the care taken to select those of superior intelligence. A similar school has been started in Boston, which has given great satisfaction and shown fair fruit so far. One who has been trained in New Haven, and one somewhat different in Brooklyn.

What an invaluable acquisition, when sickness enters our homes, to know there is besides a good doctor, a competent nurse to be called on! Then the man of business goes to his toil, of whatever sort, feeling he leaves his wife and child in more competent hands than his own. He knows if he wants a bookkeeper he wants one that understands the work and not the novice; and in the work of saving life there must be certainly as much labor and time expended to qualify the individual who assumes the post as to fit a man to keep books. Where do we want unskilled labor! Nowhere. Then of all places in the wide world do not allow it to serve in the sick room.

THE ROYAL MARRIAGE SETTLEMENT.

The treaty between Queen Victoria and the Emperor of Russia, relative to the marriage of the Duke of Edinburgh and the Grand Duchess Maria Alexandrovna, contains the following provisions: That the Duchess shall be free to exercise the religious profession of the orthodox Greek Church; that her children, if any, shall be brought up as Protestants; that the Emperor gives to the Grand Duchess a marriage portion of 1,000,000 roubles, about $750,000, which shall remain in Russia, and the interest accruing therefrom at the rate of five per cent. per annum, she shall have separate and exclusive enjoyment of, and at her death may dispose of the capital amount as she thinks proper. The Emperor also gives his daughter 78,000 roubles, about $58,000, per annum during her lifetime and a further sum of 1,000,000, to be paid in Russia, the interest to be at the disposal of her Highness with liberty to dispose of the capital at her death. Her Highness has also a fortune of 600,000 roubles, ($450,000) which is to remain in Russia, but the income arising from which is also at her disposal. That there shall be only one household for the royal pair, and each shall be responsible only for the debts incurred by them individually, without liability to contribute to the other's property or revenue for contribution thereto. If her Royal Highness should become a widow she is to have 25,000 a year from the English revenue, and is to be free to live in any country she pleases; and at her death, whether she die before or after the Duke, the marriage portions are to be appropriated for the benefit of her children. In the event of her Royal Highness dying before her husband and leaving no children, the Duke is to have the employment for the life of the interest of the ordinary marriage portion of the Duchess, and at her death it is to revert to the Emperor of Russia. The special marriage portion, would at once revert to the Emperor in the event of the Duchess dying before her husband, and without children. The only sum which would go absolutely to the Duke would be a sum of 250,000 roubles ($187,500), which is to be taken out of the marriage portion mentioned in Article V., the interest on this sum being deducted from the interest on the marriage portion, which as already stated, his Royal Highness is to receive during life.

NEW YORK CITY.

There are 470 churches, chapels, and missions of all kinds in New York, with accommodations for 250,000 persons, of these 380 are Protestant places of worship, with accommodations for 250,000 persons. The number of children in the city between the ages of 5 and 15 is estimated at 200,000. The census returns the number 5 to eighteen years of age, at 350,353. In the schools under the Board of Education there is an average attendance of 166,329. In parochial schools, industrial schools, private schools, colleges, etc., there must be 35,000 more.
